Hand Pumps

Traditional Hand Pumps

The traditional Angram hand pumps represent the pinnacle of excellence for gravity-dispensed cask ales, combining refined style with cutting-edge technology.

Features:

Type of dispensed beverage:

Beer

Number of ways/lines:

1 tap

Finish:

Chrome

Copper

Brass

Bronzer

Connection: Through the Bar, Clamp To Bar

Strengths

Performance

- The internal cylinder can be sized for your draught style (with 1/2, 1/3 or 1/4 pint capacity) and designed to ensure continuous flow and minimize interruptions
- Each cylinder can be equipped with a water jacket to keep the beer at the ideal temperature during tapping and serving

Serviceability

- Angram hand pumps are available in 4 models: CQ for bench mounting, CO (Clamp-On) for counter edge mounting, pass-through Counter-Mounting and Cabinet to accommodate up to 8 pumps in series
- The CQ and CO models offer easy access to the cylinder and replaceable components such as nozzle and handle

Design & User Experience

- Each hand pump is customizable to suit the pub's style
- The handle is available in wood with a metal frame, aluminum bar, or brass tube
- The wooden parts come in four wood types (oak, mahogany, ash, and natural), while the metal parts are offered in seven finishes, including brass, chrome, and copper

Advanced Features

- Traditional hand pumps can be equipped with a standard short nozzle (northern draught style) or an extended nozzle ideal for creating top cream on the cask beer (southern draught style)

Convenience

- The internal cylinder in high-resistance tempered glass and the external insulating cylinder in polycarbonate, present only in the case of a water jacket system, ensure the durability of the product

Hand Pumps

Cylinderless hand Pumps

Angram hand pumps with Cylinderless technology represent the ideal solution for serving traditional cask-style beer while maintaining manual movement, but exploiting the advantages of a draught system.

Features:

Type of dispensed beverage:

Beer

Number of ways/lines:

1 tap

Finish:

Chrome

Copper

Brass

Bronzer

Connection: Clamp To Bar

Strengths

Performance

- Thanks to a sophisticated internal gas spring mechanism, the Angram Cylinderless pumps faithfully reproduce the traditional movement of the cask pump while being powered by a line of draught beer

Advanced Features

- Cylinderless hand pumps can be equipped with a standard short nozzle (northern draught style) or an extended nozzle ideal for creating top cream on the cask beer (southern draught style)

Serviceability

- The gear mechanism and gas spring can be easily removed and replaced, being supplied as a single assembly
- The nozzle and handle structure can also be easily replaced

Convenience

- Cylinderless hand pumps allow pubs to serve cask beer to their customers using the existing draught system

Design & User Experience

- Each hand pump is customizable to suit the pub's style
- The handle is available in wood with a metal frame, aluminum bar, or brass tube
- The wooden parts come in four wood types (oak, mahogany, ash, and natural), while the metal parts are offered in seven finishes, including brass, chrome, and copper
